

PRESS RELEASE
London, 26 June 2011

Greenergy listed as the third largest private company in Britain by the Sunday Times
Deloitte Top Track 100

Greenergy, the UK's leading supplier of petrol and diesel, was today listed as the 3rd biggest private company in Britain by sales in the Sunday Times Deloitte Top Track 100. This year saw Greenergy move up the league table once again, from the 9th largest private company last year and 10th largest in 2009.

Andrew Owens, Greenergy co-founder and Chief Executive said:

“We've experienced remarkable growth since we began as a bedroom start-up nearly 20 years ago - yet there is as much opportunity to grow our business now as at any point in the past. Our growth has been achieved by maintaining a low cost/high efficiency operation. Going forward, our focus will be on further extending these benefits to our customers' operations.

I'd like to thank the team at Greenergy for their ongoing commitment as we work together to achieve this.”

ENDS

For more information:

Alex Lewis, Head of Communications, Greenergy, tel 020 7404 7700, alex.lewis@greenergy.com

Notes to editors

Greenergy

Greenergy is a leading national provider of road fuel and managed fuel services with significant infrastructure and service capability. Today it supplies 10 billion litres of petrol, diesel and biofuel annually – about one fifth of all the road fuel sold in Britain. For more information see www.greenergy.com

Top Track 100

The Sunday Times Deloitte Top Track 100 is published annually and lists the largest private companies in Britain by sales. For more information see www.fasttrack.co.uk.